Part B - Department Policy

Assessment Overview

All recipients who reside in households with dependent children and who are adults 18 years of age or older, and those children who are 16 and 17 years old who are not attending secondary school and have not completed high school or an equivalency program, must be assessed. The assessments for these individuals must be completed no later than 90 days from when the individual is determined eligible for Temporary Assistance (TA) (see Social Services Law [SSL] §335 and 18 NYCRR 385.6). All individuals who are subject to completing an assessment are required to comply with assessment requirements.

As outlined in 18 NYCRR 385.10, districts are required to describe local assessment procedures in their biennial Temporary Assistance and Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) Employment Plan, including when assessments are conducted and what information they collect. While districts are encouraged to provide assessments that are more detailed and comprehensive than what is required, the regulations list the seven required elements of an assessment at 18 NYCRR 385.6 subdivision (a)(2). Assessments must include, at a minimum, a review of an individual's:

- education level, including literacy and English language proficiency;
- basic skills proficiency;
- child care and other supportive service needs;
- skills and prior work experience;
- prior participation in education and training;
- training and vocational interests; and,
- family circumstances, including any special needs of a child.

As described above, districts are required to complete employment assessments within 90 days of the date on which eligibility is determined for households with dependent children. However, districts are encouraged to complete the employment assessment as soon after an individual has applied for TA as is practicable and to thereafter reassess individual circumstances and work activity assignments as relevant changes occur, no less frequently than annually. Districts may choose to use the LDSS-4980 a locally developed assessment tool, the Welfare-to-Work Caseload Management System (WTWCMS) or New York City Work Accountability and You (NYCWAY) assessment functions to record the information gathered during the client assessment. Prior to the completion of the assessment, the district may assign the applicant or recipient to work activities.

Districts are strongly encouraged to use WTCMS to enter assessment and plan information as recommended in 11-ADM-06. The use of WTCMS will simplify data entry and will support improved reporting capabilities. Data identifying that the assessment and/or employment plan have been completed is sent from the WTCMS to the Welfare Reporting and Tracking System (WRTS) data base for reporting and tracking purposes. The benefits of utilizing WTCMS allow for quick and easy access to client information among staff, as needed. When case maintenance is required, updates/changes can be made as needed to family composition, work history, child care needs and other supportive services. By using WTCMS, all staff will see the latest updates.

Failure of an individual to comply with completing an assessment may result in non-compliance proceedings and/or sanction as indicated in 385.11 and 385.12. An applicant who fails to comply with assessment requirements shall be ineligible for public assistance. A recipient who fails to comply with assessment requirements shall be subject to the provisions of sections 385.11 and 385.12.

Employment Plan

Based on the assessment, a written employment plan should be developed in consultation with the individual and should reflect the individual's preferences whenever possible, consistent with the assessment.

The employment plan is composed of seven sections and addresses all of the required plan elements including the supportive services the district will provide, the work activity assignment(s) and the individual's employment goals. Additionally, the LDSS-4978 New York State Employment Plan includes a section to summarize an individual's challenges and barriers as determined through the employment assessment and describes how the barriers are to be addressed. The Outcomes and Client Activity Assignment(s) sections of the employment plan record the actions taken once the employment assessment and employment plan have been completed, including recording why an individual's preferences could not be accommodated, if applicable. Districts may choose to use the LDSS-4978 New York State Employment Plan, a locally developed plan or the WTCMS or NYCWAY employment plan functions to facilitate the use of information collected through the employment assessment to develop appropriate employment plans intended to help individuals achieve economic independence. Assignments to work activities must be made at district discretion after considering the ability of the district to attain its participation rate. If an individual's preferences cannot be accommodated in the employment plan, the plan should record the reasons why.

The district does not necessarily need an individual's agreement with the finished plan but should strive to accommodate individual preferences where appropriate in order to increase success with meeting plan goals. The employment plan can be changed as needed as long as the local district informs the client in writing and provides thorough documentation in the case record. The client is not required to sign the employment plan under any circumstances, but may be encouraged to do so to indicate their participation in the development of the plan.

Part C - Questions and Answers

Q.1 When should an assessment be completed and how often should an individual be re-assessed after the initial assessment is completed?

A.1. All TA recipients who reside in households with dependent children and who are adults 18 years of age or older, and those children who are 16 and 17 years old who are not attending secondary school and have not completed high school or an equivalency program, must be assessed within 90 days from when the individual is determined eligible for TA. Districts are encouraged to complete employment assessments as soon after an individual has applied for TA as is practicable and to thereafter reassess individual circumstances and activity assignments as circumstances warrant, no less frequently than annually.

Q.2 Can the district sanction an individual who refuses to comply with a work activity assigned in accordance with the employability plan, e.g., basic education, but who is willing to do another work activity, such as work experience?

A.2 Yes. If the district determines that the individual needs the activity assigned to reach self-sufficiency or the assignment is necessary for the district to meet its participation rate, then it can sanction the individual for refusing or failing to comply with the assignment. Of course, the procedure for conciliation must be followed (Section 385.11).

Q.3 What happens to an applicant or recipient who fails willfully and without good cause to attend an assessment?

A.3 Failure to comply with applicant assessment requirements results in denial of the TA application for the household. No conciliation is required. However, in those instances where the individual who failed to comply with applicant assessment requirements is not a legally responsible relative of another member of the assistance unit, only the individual should be denied (individual ineligible) TA. TA eligibility for the remaining household should be determined consistent with existing procedures. For example, a 19 year old individual who is residing with his/her parent and fails to comply with applicant assessment would be denied TA benefits, but the district would still determine the eligibility of the remaining household members who applied for TA.

A TA recipient who fails to comply with an employment assessment must be offered conciliation and would be subject to an employment sanction in accordance with 18 NYCRR §385.12, in those instances where the district determines that the individual willfully and without good cause failed to comply with employment assessment requirements.

Note: Unlike other employment sanctions which result in a prorata reduction in TA benefits, the change in TA benefits for the household when a non-legally responsible individual willfully and without good cause refuses or fails to comply with TA employment requirements other than applicant assessment or applicant job search would be an incremental reduction to remove the noncompliant individual from the TA budget. The district must notify the household of the employment sanction and the individual would be sanctioned from TA in accordance with the sanction progression for households with dependent children, if the household includes a dependent child or the sanction progression for households without dependent children, if the household does not include a dependent child as identified in 18 NYCRR §385.12. Essential persons receiving TA as part of a Family Assistance case would be considered to be residing in a household with dependent children for the purpose of determining the TA sanction progression under 18 NYCRR 385.12. A recipient who fails to comply with an assessment requirement is subject to the same conciliation and sanction as one who fails to comply with other work activity requirements.

Q.4 Are districts permitted to conduct an employment assessment by telephone if conducting an in-person assessment is not feasible?

A.4 Yes. Districts may conduct a staff-assisted assessment in person or by telephone.
